these pictures were taken freshman year at reed college '83 on 35mm film, hand developed by me! i feel like they perfectly encompass the whirlwind of chaos we all went through that year, screaming, laughing, and getting super fucked up. this was 6 years ago now which is crazy to think about! but it feels like just yesterday when i took through all these photos :)

Sony cybershot

I've been regularly taking photos with my old Sony Cybershot for a little over a year now, specifically focusing on the people in my life as subjects. For me, photography is an incredibly sentimental and social thing, allowing me to record as much as possible and meet new people where I might not have. In this series of photos, taken from various times in my first year of college, they showcase memorable and exciting features of my time in New York over the last nine months. They, quite literally, depict what my college experience has been so far:

capturing the people
and moments that I enjoyed the most.
